Does Corn Wear Out Soil?

The famed Morrow plots at the University of Illinois should dispel the idea that you can "corn land to death." One field that grew corn continuously for 83 years got its first complete fertilizer treatment three years ago. The yield in 1958 was 130 bushels per acre.

Looks as if soil management is the important consideration.

Milk Fever

Workers at Ohio State University report that they have been successful in reducing the incidence of milk fever by feeding at a daily rate of 30 million USP units of Vitamin D equivalent beginning three to eight days before the expected day of calving. In this study, 32 Jersey herds that had serious milk fever problems, or about 500 cows, were used.

The Vitamin D was combined with the grain ration and continued feeding for 2 days after calving.

130 cows with previous history were treated, 23% showed an incident. In the control group of 31, 61% showed an incident.

155 cows without previous history were treated, with 6% having an incident, while another 155 cows also without a history, used as a check, 23% showed evidence of milk fever.

These results point out that regardless of whether the animal has had a previous history of milk fever, the feeding of Vitamin D reduced the occurrence, 60 to 70%.

Can Dairy Heifers Be Bred At An Earlier Age?

The final answer is not yet available but work at Cornell points out some considerations.

The average cow stays in the herd less than 3½ lactations. During this time she must pay for her maintenance; cost of raising to time of first calving; and then provide the owner with some profit.

Work at Cornell shows that it is possible to gain at least one-half lactation in the average cow by following a system of heavy feeding and early breeding.

Heifers on a high level of feeding come in estrus for the first time at slightly less than nine months of age; those on a medium level at 12 months and those on low level, at 17 months.

There is nothing to be gained, and much to be lost by waiting for high level fed heifers that are 15-18 months of age before breeding. If the average high level fed heifer had been bred the second time she came in estrus, she would have calved at 80 weeks of age, and would have weighed over 1100 pounds. This work was done with Holstein heifers.

This study indicates that dairymen need to take another look at heifer feeding.

BIBLE BAPTIST CHURCH STARTS NEW BUILDING

The congregation of the Bible Baptist Church has sold its present property on Route 460, and purchased an acre of ground for a new building site, and is now engaged in constructing a new church building. Much of the foundational work has been finished.

The proposed building will be 40-x-62 feet, block and brick structure. It will consist of one story and a full basement, and will house ten class rooms, a nursery, and an auditorium which will seat nearly 200. Much of the labor, skilled and unskilled, is to be provided by members of the congregation, according to Rev. Randolph Hite, pastor.

John H. Cyrus, of Spout Spring, has been appointed as general supervisor of construction. R. B. McCormick, Aubrey P .Johnson, and Mr. Cyrus serve as a building committee which will direct the project.

The new church site is located on State Route 677, approximately three hundred yards from the intersection of highways 26 and 24, on the west side of town.

LOCAL METHODISTS IN FUND-RAISING DRIVE FOR NEW BUILDING

What promises to be a very successful campaign in raising funds for a new church building, is under way this week at the Memorial Methodist Church here. The drive was launched Sunday afternoon, under the direction of the Rev. Ralph L. Haga, Executive Secretary of the Virginia Conference Board of Missions. Seventy ambassador associators were in attendance at the briefing and training period on Sunday afternoon, following which general solicitation of the membership began. Subscriptions are being secured on a 150-week basis. Twenty-seven workers handed the director personal subscriptions totaling $24,-500 at the "kickoff" meeting.

At the first check-up meeting held on Tuesday evening, the total had reached the $41,000 mark from 96 estimates secured from 81 family groups. This does not represent quite one-half of the church's membership. The Rev. R. A. Bergdoll, pastor of the church, states that he "expects the local canvass to be completed by Friday evening at nine o'clock, when a final check-up meeting will be held."

Approximately one hundred non-resident members are being solicited for support through the mails. High goals were set for the promotion in an endeavor to make possible the earliest feasible beginning of construction of the new $150,-000 edifice. The minimum goal was set at $75,000. Mr. Haga stated that his "study of the financial potential reveals a possibility that the church could raiize that amount over the 150-week period in addition to the current budget." He also stated that "should the drive only gross $60,000 for the building program it would be an outstanding achievement for the congregation."

Enthusiasm and expectancy continue to mark progress of the campaign.

ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT

. . . Hon. John .B. Boatwright

One of Virginia's veteran legislators, Hon. John B. Boatwright has let it be known that he plans to retire and will not be a candidate for another term in the Virginia House of Delegates. He represented Appomattox, Buckingham and Cumberland Counties.

The 75-year-old Buckingham legislator has a record of Assembly service that dates back further than any other member of the General Assembly. He served a House term in 1922-23, and returned to 1936 and has been there ever since.

He is chairman of the powerful General Laws Committee, and is one of the veteran leaders in work of the Assembly.
